

MEET THE 2006 CJON ASSOCIATE EDITORS

The following oncology nurses are the associate editors of the Clinical Journal of Oncology Nursing (CJON) for 2006. They are all clinicians who care for patients with cancer on a day-to-day basis and support the mission of CJON, which is to provide practical information necessary for the direct care of patients and their families across the cancer continuum. Each associate editor coordinates one or more columns, and all are receptive to working with readers who are interested in authoring columns. The associate editors also welcome your comments, ideas, and suggestions for column topics. Contact information for each associate editor can be found at the end of each editor's role description.

Catherine C. Burke, MS, APRN, BC, ANP, AOCN®, is an adult nurse practitioner in the Laura Lee Blanton Gynecologic Oncology Center at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center in Houston, where she has been employed for the past 13 years. Previously, she was an oncology nurse educator in the Cancer Prevention Program. Cathy has been an oncology nurse for more than 25 years and has enjoyed a long relationship with the Oncology Nursing Society (ONS). She has served as a member of the Clinical Practice Committee, is a past president of the Houston Chapter of ONS, and currently is a trustee for the ONS Foundation. In addition to being the published author of several book chapters and articles on a variety of oncology topics, she edited Psychosocial Dimensions of Oncology Nursing Care.

Cathy is the associate editor for the Diagnostic Reasoning column. She can be reached at 713-563-4541 or cburke@mdanderson.org.

Melanie Hurst, MSN-FNP, RN, is a staff development specialist for the Oncology and Bone Marrow Transplant units at Christiana Care Health System in Newark, DE. She has been an oncology nurse for the past nine years and most recently worked in the field of oncology education. As a staff development specialist, Melanie is responsible for staff education and unit-based oncology orientation and assists in the development of nursing care provided to adult patients with cancer. She recently completed her master's of science in nursing and family nurse practitioner degree from Wilmington College in New Castle, DE. Melanie is a member of Sigma Theta Tau and the Delaware Diamond Chapter of ONS, where she has served as president and newsletter editor, and is an active peer reviewer for CJON.

Melanie is the associate editor for the Picture This and Patient Education columns. She can be reached at 302-545-9660 or melaniehurst@comcast.net.

Deborah Davison, MSN, NP-C, CRNP, is a nurse practitioner and the clinical affairs liaison for Precision Therapeutics® in Pittsburgh, PA. She has clinical experience in a variety of oncology settings, including orthopedic oncology, hematology/oncology, bone marrow and stem cell transplantation, and medical oncology, and has worked in oncology for the past 15 years. In addition to her position at Precision Therapeutics, Deb is an adjunct faculty member at LaRoche College in Pittsburgh, with teaching responsibility for graduate nursing students in the family nurse practitioner program.

Deb is the associate editor for the Supportive Care column and can be reached at 412-366-6805 or dddavison9@netzero.com.

CDR Colleen O. Lee, RN, MS, AOCN®, is an advanced practice oncology nurse who serves as a program manager in the National Cancer Institute's (NCI's) Office of Cancer Complementary and Alternative Medicine in Bethesda, MD. Colleen oversees the daily activities of the NCI Best Case Series Program, which was established to review retrospective clinical data for patients who receive alternative therapies as treatment for cancer. Colleen is a commissioned officer in the U.S. Public Health Service, holds the rank of commander, and serves as co-chair for the Publications Committee. Prior to her present position as an associate editor for CJON, Colleen served on the review boards for CJON and the Oncology Nursing Forum. She lectures locally, nationally, and internationally on topics related to oncology and complementary and alternative medicine.

Colleen is the associate editor for the Integrated Care column and can be reached at 301-594-5839 or leeco@mail.nih.gov.

Suzanne M. Mahon, RN, DNSc, AOCN®, APNG, is a clinical professor in the Division of Hematology and Oncology at Saint Louis University in Missouri. Suzanne is responsible for cancer control activities in the division, including cancer genetics education for at-risk patients and their families. In addition, she provides education and services for long-term follow-up in cancer survivors. Suzanne also is a clinical professor in the School of Nursing at Saint Louis University. She currently serves as the editor of the ONS Prevention/Early Detection Special Interest Group Newsletter. She is a past president of the St. Louis Chapter of ONS and currently helps with the program planning committee.

Suzanne is the associate editor for Evidence-Based Practice and an associate coeditor for the Prevention and Wellness column. She can be reached at 314-577-8854 or mahonsm@slu.edu.

Joyce A. Marrs, MS, APRN-BC, AOCNP, has been an oncology nurse for 10 years. She graduated in 2004 from the family nurse practitioner program at Wright State University in Dayton, OH, and currently works as a nurse practitioner for Hematology and Oncology Associates of Dayton. Her role as a nurse practitioner involves caring for patients in the office, hospital, and palliative care setting. Prior to working as a nurse practitioner, her oncology background was in the administration of chemotherapy in an outpatient office setting and inpatient hospice care. Joyce is active in the West Central Ohio Chapter of ONS, along with Outreach Ohio, a collaboration of all Ohio ONS chapter leaders.

Joyce is the associate editor of the Case Analysis and Oncology Nursing 101 columns. She can be reached at 937-832-1093 or joycemrn@sbcglobal.net.

Monica R. McLemore, MPH, RN, currently is a doctoral student and National Institute of General Medical Sciences Fellow at the University of California, San Francisco. She previously served as the clinic nurse manager for the gynecologic oncology and general gynecology services at Stanford Hospitals and Clinics. She maintains a per-diem position at San Francisco General Hospital in the Women's Options Center. Monica's research interests include tumor markers of ovarian cancer. She is a 2003 graduate of the National Institute of Nursing Research Summer Genetics Institute. Monica has been an ONS member since 2002, a participant in the research short course, and a presenter at the biannual research conference sponsored by ONS. She has served as a CJON reviewer since 2003.

Monica is the associate editor of CJON Reporter and an associate coeditor for the Prevention and Wellness column. She can be reached at 415-200-6097 or monica.mclemore@ucsf.edu.